

Information and Instructions Request for a Child Rearing Provision

What is the Child Rearing Provision (CRP)?

The Child Rearing Provision may help you qualify for a benefit or pension or receive a higher Canada Pension Plan benefit amount. Periods of time when you had no or low earnings normally result in a lower benefit amount. The Child Rearing Provision helps you maintain your level of earnings, if you stopped working or had lower earnings while caring for a child under the age of seven.

How to request the CRP?

If you have applied for or are receiving a retirement pension or disability benefit from the Canada Pension Plan and you meet the qualifying criteria below, you should complete this Request for a Child Rearing Provision (ISP1640) form.

Note: In the case of a Canada Pension Plan death or survivor benefit, if the deceased person was the primary caregiver of a child while the child was under age seven, the estate of the deceased or the person handling their affairs should complete the form on behalf of the deceased.

How do I qualify for the CRP?

To qualify for the Child Rearing Provision:

1. You or your current/former spouse or common-law partner must have received the Family Allowance payments or been eligible for the Canada Child Benefit.

Note: If you did not receive the Canada Child Benefit only because your family income was too high, you are considered to have been eligible for the Canada Child Benefit.
2. You must have either not worked or had low earnings while being the primary caregiver of a child under the age of seven who was born after December 31, 1958.
3. If a Social Insurance Number is not provided, you must submit proof of birth for each child listed. If a child was born outside of Canada, proof of the child's entry into Canada must be provided as well.
4. This form must be completed and signed.

If you are requesting the Child Rearing Provision on behalf of a person who is deceased, the requirements listed above must have been met by them.

Section C - Family Allowance and Canada Child Benefit

For the CPP, the primary caregiver is the person most responsible for the daily needs of the child(ren) until the age of 7. Some things a primary caregiver does are: watch over the child(ren), prepare meals, go to school meetings and events, or take the child(ren) to medical appointments.

To qualify for the Child Rearing Provision, you must have been the primary caregiver and:

1. received the Family Allowance (available before 1993); and/or
2. been eligible for the Canada Child Benefit, even if you did not receive it (available since 1993).

 Note: Only one person can be the primary caregiver at any time. Therefore, this provision can only be applied to one account for the same time period and child(ren) you list in section B1.

 To help you determine how to complete the following questions, please see Annex A at the end of the form.

Section D – Waiver of Rights to the Child Rearing Provision

-  Please read this section only if you were the primary caregiver, but did not receive the Family Allowance (available before 1993).

If you did not receive the Family Allowance, but you were the primary caregiver, we would not be able to apply this provision to your CPP benefit(s). However, if you remained at home to care for a child under age 7 but your current/former spouse or common-law partner received Family Allowances, they can waive their rights. This means your current/former spouse or common-law partner forgoes their rights to the Child Rearing Provision as it cannot be used for both you and your current/former spouse or common-law partner's CPP benefit(s) for the same child and for the same time period.

If you are requesting the CRP for yourself or on behalf of the deceased person, do not sign section D1.

To waive their rights, your current/former spouse or common-law partner has to complete and sign section D1.

-  Note: Your current/former spouse or common-law partner can only waive their rights to a primary caregiver.

D1 Waiver of rights to the Child Rearing Provision
I declare that, for the child(ren) listed for this section and on any additional sheets, I have not and will not make any claims for the Child Rearing Provision for the period(s) accredited to my current/former spouse or common-law partner. Once I give up my rights to the Child Rearing Provision, the action cannot be reversed.
Name	Social Insurance Number	Telephone number during the day
Signature		Date (YYYY-MM-DD)

-  Please read this section only if you were the primary caregiver, but were not eligible to receive Canada Child Benefits (available after 1993).

If your current/former spouse or common-law partner received Canada Child Benefits but you were actually the primary caregiver of the child, you may be eligible for the Child Rearing Provision. To be considered, you will need to provide a letter from the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) indicating you would have been eligible for the Canada Child Benefits had you applied when you were the primary caregiver. If this situation applies, we will contact you.

Annex A - Child rearing provision guide

For the Canada Pension Plan (CPP), the primary caregiver is the person most responsible for the daily needs of the child(ren) until the age of 7. Some things a primary caregiver does are: watch over the child(ren), prepare meals, go to school meetings and events, or take the child(ren) to medical appointments.

Family Allowance (FA) - available before 1993

The FA program (once known as the baby bonus) sent monthly payments to parents or guardians of dependent children under the age of 18. For most families, payments were issued to the mother. The Canada Child Benefit replaced the FA program in 1993.

Canada Child Benefit (CCB) - available since 1993. Previously known as Child Tax Benefit and Canada Child Tax Benefit

The CCB is a monthly benefit administered by the Canada Revenue Agency. The amount of the CCB is based on your net family income level, the number of children you have, and the ages of your children. In most families, payments are/ were issued to the mother. You might have been considered eligible to the CCB even if you did not receive it. If you were the primary caregiver of one or more children and did not receive the CCB only because your family income was too high, you are considered to have been eligible for the CCB.

Were you the primary caregiver?	Did you receive the Family Allowance (before 1993)?	Did you receive or were you eligible for the Canada Child Benefit (since 1993)?	What do I complete in sections C and D?
